FUSION BODYBUILDING Introduces AGENT•M™, a Progressive BCAA Bodybuilding Supplement

Guelph, Canada – Jan 30, 2009. “We are very excited about AGENT•M. It’s the first of its kind,” says FUSION co-president Adrian Burke. “We get our inspiration from the needs of bodybuilders, and developing an innovative product like this is the fulfillment of everything we believe at FUSION. It is undeniably a scientifically advanced product that will help bodybuilders train more effectively and grow bigger.”

The hard training that bodybuilders endure triggers muscle inflammation. This starts a complex series of events called the “inflammatory cascade” that can stop muscle growth. This leaves bodybuilders overtrained, weaker and smaller. The inflammatory cascade also dramatically lowers testosterone and growth hormone levels for up to 15 hours after the gym. It usually takes 48 hours before the body can start to grow muscle.

Fueled by bodybuilders’ need to be bigger and better, FUSION BODYBUILDING today launches AGENT•M, The Muscle Mechanic. AGENT•M was created to stop the inflammatory cascade, saving muscle and accelerating its growth. AGENT•M works in two ways. It stops muscle wasting by using enzymes that research shows to stop post-training muscle inflammation and the destructive release of excessive cortisol, which destroys muscle. Once the danger of the inflammatory cascade has been stopped, AGENT•M helps accelerate new muscle growth. It does this with ingredients scientifically shown to activate protein synthesis and accelerate new muscle growth directly at the muscle-tissue site.
